ON GUARD AGAINST SUBVERSIVES: WILSON

Hail Nine-Power Pact as Step to European Unity

About Town

And Country
By TIMOTHEUS T.

My friend John Small, the former deputy U. S. Marshal, sheriff and treasurer, who has been known to tell a few stories, especially about Brushy township, which would bear investigation, is making medical history again.

Three years ago, when he was operated for appendicitis, he claims the removed appendix was so large that the surgeon was contemplating sending it to the Smithsonian Institute, or some such place where unusual items are displayed for benefit of future generations.

This story might have been stretched a bit, but he does have a more unusual experience to talk about now. When he was operated for relief of a blocked intestine at Lightner hospital Sunday night, the attending surgeon, Dr. W. D. Tuttle, found a gall stone about the size of a walnut, blocking the intestine. The stone was obviously too large to have passed through the gall bladder outlet. Dr. Tuttle and Dr. N. A. Herrmann, attending physician, stated they had read of such occurrences, but had never experienced one.

Anyhow, John will be out of the hospital in a few days, and likely will be showing the stone to his friends.

CUTTER: Some months back this column ran a bit about the wood carvings of Mr. C. H. Cox, who lives at Shaw and Raymond in Harrisburg. He looked me up yesterday and as a result I'm perplexed, in a quandry, at a loss to know what to do.

Mr. Cox brought me a puzzle he had carved out of wood. It's a half-dozen intricately cut pieces that when they're put together properly they make a ball. One nice thing was that he had them all put together when he gave the puzzle to me. But I had the courage to pull them apart and now I'm stuck with six pieces of wood. I've wasted time trying to put them together and I cannot get to first base.

GUTTER: The Russian mother launched into a bitter denunciation of the government, during which her son sat taking notes, his face stern.

When she had finished with her riling "Down with the party!" he rose and stalked out of the house.

His young sister, anxiously observing all of this, followed him out the door and caught up with him. "Ilya, my brother, where are you going?" she asked.

"To party headquarters, of course, to report the shocking subversive statements we have just heard."

"But Ilya," she said pleadingly, "you've done enough for the party."

Multiplying Rabbits

The lost signet ring advertised in Register classifieds Thursday was found by Herbie Dunn, an honest lad who enrolled this year as a freshman at the Harrisburg Township high school.

Herbie, who is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Dunn, 308 East Gaskins street, restored the ring to the loser, and received a $3 reward for his good deed.

The loser is a young lady, who now wears the ring on velvet ribbon around her neck for safe keeping, being a lass who knows how to win and keep her man!

Leo Foy's multiplying rabbits nearly over-ran their hutches two days ago, but a Register "For Sale" ad scheduled to run three days, was ordered out Saturday. "We sold out the first evening it ran," says Mr. Foy, another satisfied Daily Register classified ad user.

West Germany Is Given Right to Rearm

Agreement Must Be Ratified by Nations' Governments

LONDON (AP)—A free, rearmend Germany will bolster Western defense under a nine-power agreement which today was hailed as a step toward European unity.

The United States, Britain and seven Western European nations formally agreed Sunday to give West Germany its sovereignty and the right to controlled rearmament.

Secretary of State John Foster Dulles said that the agreement, reached after a six-day conference, was stronger than the European Defense Community, the joint Western European defense plan killed by the French national assembly.

The pledge by Britain to commit four British divisions and a tactical air group to Europe until 1958 gave the new agreement added strength, Dulles said, before flying home to the United States.

Dulles said the agreement gave prospect of being "a sound core for a developing North Atlantic community and the dream of European unity is started on the road to reality."

The agreement still must be ratified by the parliaments of the nine nations whose foreign ministers initiated the pact Sunday afternoon in the ivory and gold state drawing room of Lancaster House.

France remained the most doubtful as to the final action its assembly will take. However, French sources said Premier Pierre Mendes-France was ready to stake the life of his government on ratification. This he did not do when EDC was defeated.

The 47-year old premier flew back to Paris Sunday night. The sources said he planned to push for assembly ratification of the agreement before the end of the year.

Mendes-France insists that a Franco-German agreement be reached on the Saar coal basin before the German rearmament treaty goes before the French parliament, the sources said.

The treaty signed in 10 minutes

County Historical Society to Meet At Library Tuesday

The October meeting of the Saline County Historical society will be held at the Mitchell-Carnegie library in Harrisburg Tuesday at 7:30 p. m.

An interesting type of program has been arranged for this meeting. "Little Journeys thru Egypt" will feature short trips that can be taken to historical spots during the months of October and November.

Wm. Farley will show color slides of the historic attractions and give the directions for reaching the places by automobile. Other members will give five and six minute sketches of the history of these places. Five journeys will be discussed:

1. Mr. Farley will give the historical sketch about the Indian Ladder, Clarinda Hollow, Clarinda Spring, Money Cave and Sand Cave.

2. Mrs. Earl Hancock will tell about Stonefort and surrounding villages, Garriss Mill, and Indian Burial Grounds.

3. Guy DeNeal will tell about Somerset, Mountain township, and the Hankerson Rude Block House.

4. James Bond will sketch the history of Logan Belt, the Big Sink, Brown Hole, and Disappearing Stream.

5. John Foster will give the history of Derby, the Garden of the Gods, Old Mail-route, and the Pottery factory.

A great deal of preparation has gone into making this meeting one of the finest. Those taking part in the program have done extensive research into their subjects and the color slides have been selected to show the beauty of southern Illinois.

All members and friends are encouraged to attend the meeting, enjoy the association, and offer historical facts about any of the planned trips. Some may wish to combine these historic trips with the scenic trips led by Wayman Presley each Sunday during the month of October.

Mrs. Ruth Ward, Mrs. Helen Adams, Mrs. E. B. Webster, and Mrs. R. C. Davenport compose the hospitality committee in charge of the social hour.

Parents Delay Decision on Risk Of Separating Siamese Girl Twins

CHICAGO (AP)—The parents of "beautiful" Siamese girl twins, joined at the head, today delayed a decision on whether doctors should risk trying to separate them.

The parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred J. Andrews, said they wouldn't make up their minds until doctors have completed exhaustive tests to discover what the twins' chances of survival would be.

The twins were born Friday at St. Anne's Hospital here. They are joined at the top of the skulls in a manner similar to the famed Brodie twins, who were separated in a history-making operation here in 1952.

One of the Brodie boys died. The other is living the life of a healthy three-year-old.

The Andrews twins' plight was heightened by the fact that they do not face in the same direction, as did the Brodies. The infant girls must thus lie on their sides.

Their father, a 38-year-old salesman for a meat packing firm, described them as "healthy and beautiful—just like their mother."

Mr. Andrews, 33, a striking brunette, was expected to get her first look at her daughters today. Andrews told her of their condition Sunday and said "she took it wonderfully."

He also had the difficult task of explaining what had happened to their five-year-old daughter, Patricia.

"I told her, 'Patty, your mother has given you two pretty new sisters for you,'" Andrews said. "But they are a little sick and they will have to stay in the hospital for a while. Mommy will be home soon, but she won't be able to bring the babies with her."

A crack team of pediatricians, plastic surgeons, neurosurgeons and anesthetists were meanwhile at work trying to discover whether the six-pound Andrews twins can be separated.

Wait And See

A verdict was not expected for weeks, or even months, Andrews said, and his wife would "wait and see what the doctors advise" before making their fateful decision.

The doctors must find out whether the Andrews twins have a common system of nerves, blood vessels and even brains within the bony skull structures which appear to join them.

Doctors said they had learned many valuable lessons from the months of work involved in the Brodie case. They also drew hope from the fact that the Andrews twins heads appeared to be round, indicating there may be no union of underlying tissues.

At St. Anne's Hospital attendants said the twins will probably be transferred Tuesday to the University of Illinois Research Hospital, where the Brodie twins were separated in a 10-hour operation Dec. 17, 1952.

A bus tour of the historic sites of Vandalia and vicinity will occupy Saturday morning. Members of the Vandalia Historical society will act as narrators and transportation will be provided by the Chamber of Commerce. The group will return to the high school for luncheon where Dr. Pratt will speak on "A. Lincoln of Sangamon: Lawmaker in Vandalia."

At the close of the Friday afternoon meeting a business session will be held at which five directors of the State Historical society will be elected. In turn the 15 directors will name the 1954-55 state president to succeed J. Ward Barnes of Eldorado, current head of the society.

John Small Undergoes Emergency Operation

Student Protest Hits Baltimore, Capital Schools

Demonstrate Against Integration Of Negroes, Whites

By United Press

White students protesting school integration with Negroes "stormed" Baltimore's City Hall today, and the first demonstrations against white and Negro co-education broke out in the nation's capital.

Some 50 members of a crowd of 2,000 shouted and pushed their way into Baltimore's City Hall. Police finally forced the unruly teenage high school students back into the street.

In Washington, the demonstrations were peaceful but noisy. Students demonstrated at two high schools—Anacostia and McKinley.

President Eisenhower had expressed the hope last spring that the capital schools would serve as a model for the nation in showing that Negroes and whites could sit down peacefully together in school rooms.

Ironically, the Washington demonstrations occurred a few hours before the start of the 165th year of the U. S. Supreme Court—which last spring outlawed racial segregation in public schools.

Before the march on City Hall in Baltimore, some 2,000 white teenage students had paraded through the city, shouting anti-Negro sentiments.

Some 50 of them pushed their way into the building when Mayor Thomas R. D'Alesandro refused to see them. An emergency squad of police forced them back into the street.

A police sergeant warned them that unless they dispersed the police would take steps to keep order. He told them over a loud-speaker atop a patrol car that mob action was illegal.

That quieted the crowd. After about 10 minutes they left the area without further incident.

Two Arrests Made

Some 600 extra police were on duty in Baltimore to guard against violence. Two persons were arrested during the day—a white man on charges of agitation and a Negro carrying a knife.

The Justice Department's civil rights section was running a preliminary check on the incidents. Attorneys in the section were being given all pertinent information to determine whether any person's civil rights were being violated.

R. J. Wicker, 67, Dies at Eldorado

Rolla J. Wicker, 67, who resided at 2205 First street in Eldorado, died Sunday at 6:25 a. m. in the Pearce hospital following an illness of 18 months.

He was a retired used furniture dealer.

Surviving are his wife, Elsie; one daughter, Mrs. Louise Weaver; one brother, Charles Wicker, Carmi; four stepchildren and three grandchildren.

The funeral will be Tuesday at 2 p. m. in the chapel of the Bean and Tanner funeral home where the body now lies in state. Rev. H. G. Mushegan will officiate, and burial will be in the Palestine No. 2 cemetery at Omaha.

Teacher, Terrified of Losing Mind, Kills Husband, Two Sons, Suicides

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP)—A suicide note indicated today that an Oakland teacher murdered her two teenage sons and her husband and then committed suicide because she was terrified she was losing her mind.

In one of several notes written in the 10 hours between the time she killed her sons and shot her husband, Mrs. Olive Losser, 52, said:

"I cannot teach. Something is wrong with my memory. I do not know what else to do. Please do not have a funeral. The funeral home will take care of us and bill the estate."

In six other notes she gave methodical directions about many things—including where to find the bodies of the two boys, Donald, 19, and Richard, 17.

"Look downstairs in the den," one note said. "Look in the bathroom."

Police said the teacher shot her two sons, then sat in the house for 10 hours with their bodies and waited for her husband, Milan, 52, general manager of a large appli-

McCarthy Denies Misuse of Money to Fight Communism But Refuses Accounting

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy said Sunday night he has never misused "one penny" given him to fight Communism but that he will not make a public accounting of his finances even to fight a Senate censure.

He also expressed the opinion that the positions President Eisenhower and the Democratic National Committee take may help determine how the Senate votes next month on the Watkins Committee recommendation that he be censured.

McCarthy made the statements in a television interview (NBC "Meet the Press"). It was his first public appearance since the committee filed its highly critical censure report last Monday.

Among other things, the committee said McCarthy should be censured for "contemptuously" refusing to explain his handling of anti-Communist funds either to the Senate as a whole or to an elections subcommittee that investigated his finances in 1951-52. When he was questioned about this, McCarthy said he was ready to explain his position on the spot.

"I not only used my entire salary, I have borrowed all the money I could from friends, I went broke on this Communist fight," he declared, "and anyone, anyone who even intimates that one penny of the money I raised in fighting Communism was used for any other purpose is grossly untruthful."

A questioner asked McCarthy if it wouldn't "clarify" everything if he were to make a public accounting of his handling of the money the way Vice President Richard M. Nixon reported to the nation on a controversial political expense fund during the 1952 election campaign.

McCarthy conceded "it might" but rejected the idea on the grounds that "I would not give a list of the people who contributed money to the fight" and the "Internal Revenue Bureau has just completed a complete investigation of this phase of this operation and I gather that they're satisfied."

The Wisconsin Republican said he doesn't know whether the Senate will or will not vote his censure next month.

"If they vote politics, perhaps yes," he said. "If they look at the facts and think not about McCarthy but about the dangerous precedent being set then I would say definitely no. It's a question of what the Democratic National Committee will do."

McCarthy said Sen. Ralph E. Flanders (R-Vt.), the man who launched the censure move, "has bragged Mr. Eisenhower sent him a letter commending him for his first attack upon me."

He said he did not believe this but that if it were true "it would certainly swing some Republican votes against me."

In Peble Beach, Cal., today, Flanders denied receiving any "commendation" letter or having "bragged" about anything regarding McCarthy. "The only letter I received from the President was last March shortly after I made my first Senate speech on McCarthy," he said. The vacation White House in Denver declined to comment.

Although there is no previous report of a letter, Mr. Eisenhower told his news conference March 10 that Flanders performed a "service" the day before in a speech that accused McCarthy of "doing his best to shatter" the Republican Party. The White House has maintained a strict silence on the censure fight, however.

Eisenhower Confers with Sec'y Wilson

Cabinet Secretary Says Investigation Of Cases is Low

DENVER (AP)—Defense Secretary Charles E. Wilson said after a long conference with President Eisenhower today that his department is "stepping up all our procedures" to rid it of subversives and security risks.

Wilson said that under the Defense Department's speedup in dealing with security risks, questionable cases would be moved out of sensitive jobs "and if they are out-and-out risks and practicing subversion, they will be dealt with severely."

Wilson said he felt that the "percentage" of cases warranting investigation in the Defense Department was "happily" low, considering that the defense establishment, including the armed forces, consists of about four million men and women.

On Other Matters

Other highlights that developed in a news conference following Wilson's talk with the chief executive included:

1. The secretary was bluntly critical of Democratic "ethics" in attacking Defense Department contracts with General Motors which Wilson once headed.

2. Wilson regards the nine-power agreement concluded in London Sunday for the rearmament of Germany as "a very hopeful step ahead for Europe."

3. The Selective Service Act, which expires next June 30, must, he extended and improved. In this connection, he said that in the foreseeable future he envisioned an American armed force of about three million men and to maintain this manpower level would require a "career" force of about 1,300,000 men who would remain in service longer than the two-year draft or enlistment term.

Sunday the Chief Executive lunched with House Republican Leader Charles A. Halleck (R-Ind.), who apparently urged that the full force of the Eisenhower personality be thrown into the "tough fight" to retain control of Congress.

Halleck War

Halleck was voluble but wary with newsmen after his meeting with Mr. Eisenhower. He left the impression that he asked the President to become more active, politically, in favor of GOP candidates during the next month.

Mr. Eisenhower has "the strongest voice in America today," the Indiana congressman said, and the people will listen to him. He added that the President thinks a serious national situation would follow a Democratic victory in the by-elections.

Weather Bureau Promises Break With Cooler Air

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

Blessed is the man that endureth temptation.—James 1:12.

Christ was tempted in all manner as we are, but yet without sin. He proved that men can live spotless lives. We must claim our divine heredity by faith.

The Comic-Book Story

Editorial—BY JAMES CROSSLEY

The American comic-book business seems to have learned a lesson in the power of public opinion.

A newly created trade group which includes most of the industry has taken steps toward banning offensive comic books.

Under a code of ethics every book will be read by reviewers. All "terror" and "horror" books will be refused approval. Books which pass inspection will be marked with a seal so that parents can know at a glance which books are safe to buy.

With all the talk about this development, it deserves to be put in perspective.

In the first place it should be noted that all but a very few comic-book publishers are innocent bystanders in the situation. They have never published anything but wholesome material. They have deplored the excesses of offending publishers. They should not be tarred by too vigorous a brush.

Then, too, it should be a pardonable if newspapers, as the granddads of the comic cartoon, point out the character of their branch of the family.

Your newspaper is now doing, and has always done, a good clean job of entertaining with comics and policing itself, all these years, with good taste and judgment.

There are many safeguards. The newspaper comics are produced by organizations with a sense of responsibility and are reviewed, finally, right in each community by the newspaper editors themselves who are the ones who decide what to print and what not to print.

Smacking down a few merchants of viciousness in the comic-book field still leaves unresolved one of the major tasks facing a democracy built with the keystones of free speech and a free press. There are those at one extreme who feel you cannot have "a little censorship." It fills them with dread of a growth toward Hitler-type book burnings. At the other extreme are those who fear, equally, a contagion from poisonous words which would fill the nation with a sick and misled citizenry.

This debate will go on and on while we, as a democracy, struggle to hammer out workable rules for our own welfare.

At least, in the area of mass reading for juveniles, it would appear that public opinion has forced a restraint. If the publishers of comic books can't see what is acceptable good taste they will be made to conform.

It spotlights a basic principle which can't stand repeating: that the right kind of censorship is that of public opinion.

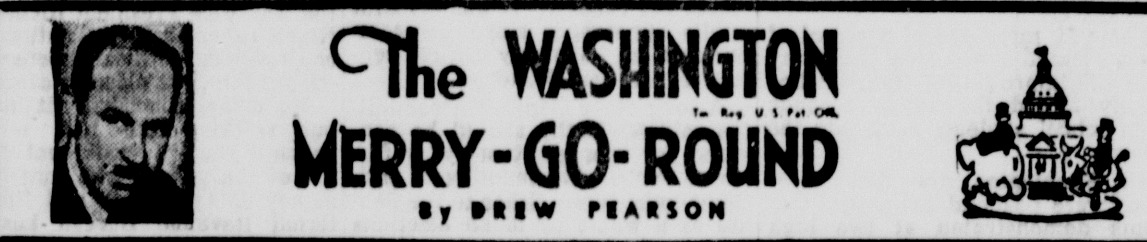

If people find something offensive it is their right and duty to withdraw support from it. Soon as occurred in the comic-book case, the public's refusal is certain to bring results.

Settling Europe's Big Problems

DREW PEARSON Says: American Diplomacy Perpetuating Columbus' Mistake: Wealthy, Friendly South America Could Be Beneficial To U. S.; No Reason Why We Should Go To War Over Formosa.

LA PAZ, Bolivia.—Every schoolboy knows that Christopher Columbus discovered America by mistake when he was really looking for the vast wealth of the Orient, but many adults don't even know that we who followed Columbus on the North American continent have carried his mistake much farther and have continued to bet our economic and political chips on the Orient when a much wealthier and more friendly area lays right under our nose in South America.

Some five centuries have passed since Columbus and Hendrik Hudson and a dozen other explorers examined every nook and cranny of the rivers and bays of the Western Hemisphere with a view to finding a channel to the Orient. Five centuries is a long time, and should be enough time for us to learn.

Especially we have been slow to learn that the Orient, now rapidly going Communist, is not our dish of tea. With Indo-China certain to go Communist, with the tin and rubber-producing areas of the Malay Peninsula in danger, with Indonesia refusing to join us in an Asiatic defense pact, and with India increasingly anti-American it seems to me it's time for us to turn to the rich and more friendly areas of the South.

Sen. William Knowland of California, sometimes called the senator from Formosa, wants to keep on worrying about the controversial island but I see no reasons why we should go to war over it, and I do see ample reason why we should concentrate on other parts of the world. That's one reason why I am making a quick trip down the west coast of South America.

WHY ORIENT'S GOING COMMUNIST

Most of the politicians in Washington don't realize it, but the chief reason the Orient is going Communist is because the white man, taking a leaf from Columbus' notebook, exploited the Orient at the expense of the New World. In brief, most of the products we buy from the Orient were stolen from Latin America. They were transported to the Orient because slave labor there was dirt cheap.

Labor was higher in South America. The social revolution came earlier there and now it's the social revolution which has caught up with the Orient. And in the Orient it is the rebellion against slave-labor wages that has brought communism.

To illustrate, it was a Britisher who, in 1876, smuggled the first rubber seeds out of Brazil and brought them to Ceylon, the Malays and Indonesia. Before that, rubber was king in Brazil. It built opera houses up the Amazon river. It started rubber factories for raincoats and gum boots in Mexico, but after the British began to exploit the cheap labor of Asia the rubber plantation of South America fell to rot and ruin.

That was why we spent three-quarters of a billion dollars building up synthetic rubber in the United States after Pearl Harbor, plus another quarter billion trying to encourage natural rubber development in South America. And that's why, with communism reaching down to these same Asiatic rubber plantations, we may be in for trouble again.

LESSONS IN COCOA, QUININE

The same thing happened with cocoa. Chocolate and cocoa were found only in Latin America when the Spanish conquistadors arrived, but the British transplanted it to the African Gold Coast where today thanks to cheap labor, it produces more than Latin America.

It was the Dutch who picked up the cinchona or quinine tree from Peru in 1854 and transplanted it to the Dutch East Indies. Since then and until World War II the Dutch had a near monopoly on quinine and as a result of the Japanese invasion the United States found itself without quinine.

We rushed madly into Latin America to plant cinchona trees after Pearl Harbor, just as we tried to encourage hemp production and as we tried to persuade Bolivian tin miners to produce more tin.

Karl Bickel, former head of the United Press, was enlisted by the Nelson Rockefeller Cultural Relations Office to speed up sisal production in Central America to replace hemp, and we demanded that the Chilean government sell its copper to us and that Cuba give us all its sugar.

Then, as the war ended, we diminished our purchases, dropped our prices, and in many cases went back to buying from the precarious and distant Orient. Naturally this caused depression, unemployment, and the danger of communism in Latin America.

Simultaneously, our Marshall Plan funds in some cases were siphoned off to build up Latin-American competition in Asia and especially Africa. Money sent to Europe under the Marshall Plan released other capital which went to build up French, British and Dutch investments in Asian and African tropics.

The chief competitor of Brazil

today, for instance, is African coffee, which has had a tremendous increase and is one reason for Brazil's economic difficulties.

These are some of the reasons why the average Latin American, though still reasonably friendly to the United States, nevertheless keeps his economic fingers crossed. He sees the possibility of a great noncompetitive two-way trade in tropical products which we can't produce in the U. S. for manufactured products which he can't produce.

But, to put across this trade plus the cultural and political ties that should go with it, the United States will have to do a lot more careful planning than goes with our rather haphazard, hit-and-miss good-neighbor policy today.

Olivia to Wed, Says She Will Not Quit Films

By ALINE MOSBY

HOLLYWOOD — Some actresses vow they could give up their work for true love, but bride-to-be Olivia De Havilland honestly confessed today she'll never retire. The brown-eyed actress left the side of her French fiancé for her first Hollywood picture in more than a year, and in December she'll return to Paris to wed writer Pierre Galant.

Betty Hutton recently announced she is quitting show business "to be a woman," and other stars when they marry devil claim their work means little to them. But Miss De Havilland frankly admitted, "any man who marries me has to take my work along with me."

"I have to go on," she said. "I have no plans to stop working. It's in my blood. It's a fever, and with me it seems to get worse every year! I'm married to my work."

"To have both a career and marriage," she added thoughtfully, "is difficult." The movie that drew her back to Hollywood is "Not as a Stranger," Producer Stanley Kramer's version of the best-selling medical novel. Olivia plays a Swedish nurse, so far her to return to Filmville she acquired blonde hair and a Swedish accent.

The Oscar-winning star is intense and serious about her work. She devotedly studied how to be a surgical nurse and slap instruments into the surgeon's waiting hand. At a press party before the picture got underway she appeared in a blue dior dress low-cut, not flat and chatted happily with reporters. Today on the set, the actress, wearing a plain white uniform, graciously shook hands with her fellow workers and waited, almost eagerly, for her scene.

"Pierre and I will be married in January," she said. "First I have to fill out some forms to make sure I retain my American citizenship. I changed once from British to American and I don't wish to sacrifice it."

"We will live in a Paris apartment because my husband is a magazine executive there. We hope to have two children and my son Ben is with Pierre now. His birthday was Monday so Mr. Kramer sent me a cake with five candles," she laughed.

She hasn't lived in Europe long enough to compare European and American marriages, she said. "But I don't think American girls are brought up to be self-sufficient," she reflected. "French women seem more tranquil. They are not so neurotic."

Urges Work Opportunity For Handicapped

"The physically handicapped must, if at all possible, be made to pull their own weight in society," George Barr, chairman of the Governor's Committee on Employment of the Physically Handicapped, declared today upon the opening of the tenth annual observance of National Employ the Physically Handicapped week.

"These people, like everyone else, should be required to work for a living, to pay taxes, and to add their share to the productive power of the nation," he said. "But before they can do so, we must give them the opportunity to compete equally with the rest of the labor force."

Barr pointed out that the campaign to develop employment opportunities for the physically handicapped is not an appeal for charity or special treatment. It is instead a practical program aimed at emphasizing ability, rather than disability.

"For example, a girl with the use of only one hand wouldn't be much good as a typist. But, when properly trained, she could be just as good a bookkeeper or receptionist as if she had both hands."

In his appeal to employers to hire disabled workers, Barr pointed out that such concerns as the Ford Motor company, Remington-Rand, International Harvester, Williamson Candy company, and Caterpillar Tractor have found it is good business to hire the handicapped. Their cost records show that disabled workers who are properly placed on the right jobs equal the production records of able-bodied employees and have better safety and attendance records. These companies also report that the presence of disabled workers doing a good job tends to stimulate other employees to greater efforts.

He outlined six steps to a successful "employ-the-handicapped" program for business:

1. Adopt a definite policy;
2. Survey the job requirements;
3. Interview the applicant;
4. Determine the applicant's capabilities;
5. Place him on the correct job;
6. Allow for a break-in period.

Report Drop in Jobless Claims

WASHINGTON — The Labor Department has reported that a downward trend in the number of unemployment compensation claims has resumed after a brief interruption.

The department said that new unemployment compensation claims dropped 14,400 to 246,200 during the week ended Sept. 25 after rising the previous week.

The department said that continuing claims also declined by 33,500 to a new 1954 low of 1,605,400 during the week ended Sept. 18.

The decline in continuing claims also followed a rise during the previous week. The volume of both new and continuing claims showed a downward trend since mid-summer.

Former VFW Tenth District Ass'n to Meet Sunday, Oct. 10

The former Tenth District association of the Veterans of Foreign Wars will hold its first annual reunion at West Frankfort, Sunday, Oct. 10. District Commander Calcaterra has announced that there will be vaudeville entertainment as well as the pleasant comradeship and renewal of old friendships. Some are planning to bring basket lunches, but for those who do not, the auxiliary will serve. The West Frankfort post and auxiliary will be host to a dance at the home on Saturday night.

Commander Hollie Stout of the local post, and President Florence Hancock of the auxiliary hope that a large number from here will attend this strictly-for-fun affair.

The area that originally comprised the tenth Illinois district has been organized into three new districts, Harrisburg and Eldorado of this county being included in the new 15th district.

The average size of farms in the 31 southern counties of Illinois has increased only 13 acres in the last 25 years. (SIU)

Notice To Voters

You must be properly registered to vote. All voters who have never registered, those that have moved to another precinct, or changed their address, will have until October 4th to register, and until October 5th to change their address.

THIS CAN BE DONE AT THE COUNTY CLERK'S OFFICE, OR BY EITHER PRECINCT COMMITTEEMAN OF EITHER PARTY.

The same applies to voters who will become 21 years of age on or before November 2, 1954.

This is an election year in which it is important that every voter cast a vote, and it is important to you to know that you are registered properly as a voter.

The County Clerk's office has mailed a registration card showing the precinct and address of each voter. If a voter does not receive one of the new registration cards, there is something wrong with his or her registration; namely, the voter is not registered, or has moved and has not changed registration, or there is an error in the registration. We are anxious that every voter's registration be in order and we will be ready at all times to help correct registrations.

Some transfers of registration have been made since the new cards were made up, and it is thus possible that some of you may get two cards. Please check for the correct card.

REMEMBER: YOU MUST BE PROPERLY REGISTERED TO VOTE!

Don B. Garrison
COUNTY CLERK.

Douglas Urges Honest Vote on Nov. 2;
Meek Charges 'Switcheroo' by Opponent

SPRINGFIELD (UP) — Sen. Paul H. Douglas has asked veterans to form "task forces and flying squads to see the Democrats get an honest vote in the Nov. 2 election."

He made the plea Sunday after charging that Democrat Edward J. Barrett lost his 1952 campaign for re-election as secretary of state because some Republican county clerks "held back returns" and "made mistakes in favor of the GOP."

Speaking to a group of 500 veterans, Douglas said they should work with Democratic state and county organizations to insure a fair count.

"If you don't have the strength to watch the precincts at least watch the county clerks," he said.
Barrett backed up Douglas's charge, telling the same audience that he was "counted out" in 1952
by about 9,000 votes.

Douglas' campaign for re-election gained added strength at the rally
by the appearance of John Stelle, downstate political leader who occupied the governor's chair for 100 days in 1940.

Stelle, who supported Republican
Sen. Everett Dirksen in 1952, and President Eisenhower in 1952, said he was switching back to the Democrats because "Douglas represents the lower income brackets."

"Dirksen represents the people with money," he said. "They make an ideal combination in the Senate."

2 Brothers Ask
Asylum Behind
Iron Curtain

BERLIN (UP)—Two Westville, N. J. brothers told a Communist press conference here today that they have asked "political asylum" behind the Iron Curtain because the United States is "preparing a new war" and building concentration camps for people the government dislikes.

The pair, employed in West Germany for the past two years by an American Electronics firm, disappeared on the highway between West Germany and isolated Berlin on Sept. 7.

It had been presumed they were kidnaped by the Reds until they appeared today and announced they went to the Communist East voluntarily.

The brothers, Henry and James
Starr, refused to say at their press conference whether or not they are Communists. But they dutifully parroted the Communist line and charged that the United States is following "a war policy" and is "undemocratic."

In Westville, their mother, Mrs.
Grace Starr, said she was "flabbergasted" by the action of her two sons.

"But if that's the way they feel about things, they can stay there," she said. "I want to make it clear that the rest of us here at home
(she has four other sons) don't share their opinions."

Henry acted as spokesman. He said he and his brother appeared at the Communist-called press conference "because we want to re

Purdue Soph Topples Notre Dame with 4 TD Passes; Stanford Beats Illinois, 12-2

By United Press
Sports fans just turning to college football today now will find things mightily changed at the old homebase because the top teams of 1953, including Maryland and Notre Dame, aren't running things any more.

The same weekend that saw the Giants kill off the Indians in four straight also saw Maryland, last year's national champion, and Notre Dame, last year's runner-up, knocked from the ranks of the unbeaten.

And there were plenty of other surprises—for example, those perennial powerhouses Michigan State (the Rose Bowl champion), Illinois (co-Big Ten champion), and Pennsylvania all were beaten for the second time.

Notre Dame's 27-14 walloping by Purdue on Saturday was the big "shocker," though, because the Fighting Irish had been rated the nation's No. 1 team after blasting Texas a week before. The game catapulted Purdue sophomore quarterback Len Dawson into national fame as he tossed four touchdown passes to end Notre Dame's unbeaten streak at 13 games.

Dawson Sensational
With a total of eight TD passes in two games (he also had four last week against Missouri), young Dawson easily qualifies as the most sensational individual performer so far this season.

Maryland bowed to UCLA, 12-7, on Friday night as the Uclans scored the winning touchdown in the fourth quarter after a Maryland punt had carried from the end zone only to Maryland's 15-yard line.

Illinois, beaten by Penn State in an upset last week, took a 12-2 whipping from Stanford in Saturday's nationally-televised game as Stanford's rugged defense held 53 ground-gaining champ J. C. Carlisle to 38 yards rushing.

Michigan State, stunned the week before by Iowa, was just about washed out of the Big Ten title race as it went down again, 6-0, before Wisconsin. Alan Ameche scored the winning touchdown on a disputed play—with Leroy Bolden injured on the ground, State had only 10 men on the field and was trying to call time out.

Pennsylvania, crushed by Duke a week before, seemed on the way out as a football power as it took a 27-7 trouncing from William and Mary. Charlie Summer of W. and M. highlighting the game with an 89-yard touchdown dash.

Among the most impressive winners of the weekend were Duke, Ohio State, Southern California, Army, Rice, and Navy.

Duke Edges Tennessee
Duke followed up its rout of Pennsylvania by scoring an important 7-6 triumph over Tennessee on Jim Nelson's point-after-touchdown. Ohio State rolled to a 21-13 victory over California as Howard (Hopalong) Cassidy led the way with two touchdowns.

Southern California proved alert in grabbing 10 fumbles to beat Northwestern, 12-7. Army, upset by South Carolina in a stunning season opener last week, made the "comeback of the week" to wallopp Michigan, 26-7, and Rice crushed Cornell, 41-20 as Dick Moege scored four touchdowns; and Navy stamped itself as one of the East's very best teams by blasting Dartmouth, 42-7.

Penn State, by a close 13-0 over Syracuse, in a game virtually devoid of passing; Yale, 26-24, over Brown as Brown missed all four extra-point tries for a total of seven misses in seven tries this season; Minnesota, 46-7 over Pittsburgh as irate Pitt rooters razed Coach Red Dawson with "so long, Red!" signs; Massachusetts, a 13-7 upset of Harvard on a last-period TD; Princeton, 54-20 over Columbia as Royce Flippin ran to three TD's and passed to another.

Utah, 7-6 over Oregon on Lou Mele's touchdown plunge and extra point; Nebraska, 39-14 over Iowa State as Dennis Korinek scored twice; Texas, 40-14 over Washington as Pat Rolar scored two touchdowns; Virginia Tech, an 18-7 upset of Clemson; Texas A. and M., 6-0 over Georgia; Iowa, 48-6 over Montana "under wraps"; West Virginia, a 26-6 upset over South Carolina, Army's conqueror; Cincinnati, 40-7 over Tulsa; Georgia Tech, 10-7 over Southern Methodist; on George Volkert's 47-yard TD run in the last quarter; and Washington, which beat Oregon, 17-7, but suffered a grave loss when Sandy Luderham, the nation's top passer so far this season, broke a leg.

Ohio Man Wins Drag Race at 132.35 At Lawrenceville

LAWRENCEVILLE, Ill. (UP)—Arthur Arfonz, Akron, O., drove a 4,000 pound hot rod with six wheels and an aircraft engine to first place in the first annual "world series of drag racing" Sunday.

Arfonz' car, built by himself and his two brothers, all licensed pilots, was clocked at 132.35 miles per hour over the quarter-mile course.

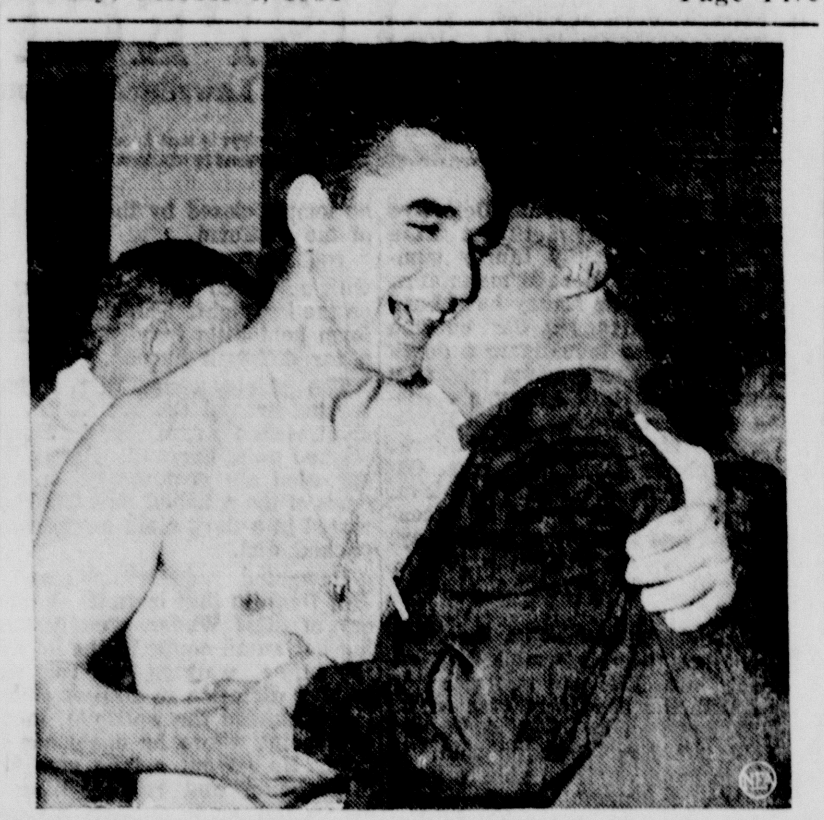

A "drag race" is an acceleration test in which the drivers start from a standstill and are timed as they finish a quarter of a mile.

Arfonz beat out more than 350 hot rod drivers from all parts of the nation in the first annual event, sponsored by the Automobile Timing Association of America and run on a concrete apron at the Lawrenceville Airport. He received the Maremont Speed Trophy and a $1,000 scholarship.

Holly Hedrick, 24, Memphis, Tenn., finished second in a fibreglass speedster, at 1,000 pounds, the lightest car in the race.

The "Bean Bandits" of San Diego, Calif., with Jaquinn Arnette driving, captured third place.

George Smith, Chicago, turned in the fastest speed for motorcycles, being clocked at 115.38 miles per hour.

Giants Refuse to Criticize Poor Showing of Indians in World Series

By LEO H. PETERSEN
United Press Sports Editor
NEW YORK (UP)—Baseball's new world champions, the New York Giants, began heading for their respective homes today, preferring to gloss over the Cleveland Indians' surprisingly poor World Series showing by firmly denying that the losers choked up.

The triumphant Giants, who will receive their series' spoils later this month, admitted they bowled over the Indians more easily than they expected but there was no criticism of Cleveland's performance.

"Maybe we simply caught them at the right time," declared Alvin Dark, the Giants' shortstop and captain. "It's ridiculous to think that they lost because they got series fever or anything like that. The Indians are a great ball club and don't let anyone tell you differently."

Other Giants players, like veteran pitcher Sal Maglie and second baseman Dave Williams backed up Dark but none of them could offer a reason for Cleveland's unexpected four-game collapse.

Indians Not Same
Whether the Giants admitted it or not, however, it was perfectly obvious that the Indians during the series were not playing the same brand of ball that accounted for a record number of 111 victories during the American league season.

The Indians established a new World Series record with 37 men left on base, they failed to steal a single base, they made four errors that were listed in the official box score and several other mental lapses that didn't show anywhere except in the eventual outcome.

"You can't rap the Cleveland club just because we beat 'em four straight," said victorious Leo Durocher. "Sure, I'll admit I didn't figure we'd beat 'em four in a row. But don't forget we got all the breaks and they didn't get any."

The Giant players, feted by jubilant Horace Stoneham, the president and owner, shortly after they returned from Cleveland Saturday night, generally talked about enjoying "a good long rest" for the next month or two.

Golfing and Fishing
Relief ace Hoyt Wilhelm said he intended to play golf with teammate Whitey Lockman around Charlotte, N. C.; series hero Dusty Rhodes said he intended "to go fishing for about six straight weeks," and Willie Mays, who turned in the defensive gem of the series in the first game, said he was going to "relax a while" and then go to Puerto Rico to play winter ball.

While the Giants are resting up, they can enjoy doing some mental arithmetic and try to figure out their individual shares, which are sure to set a new record. Each winning share will be worth about $10,000.

The total attendance of 251,507 was the largest ever for a four-game series while the players' pool, amounting to $798,763.72 surpassed the previous high of $691,341.61 set by the Yankees and Brooklyn in six games last year.

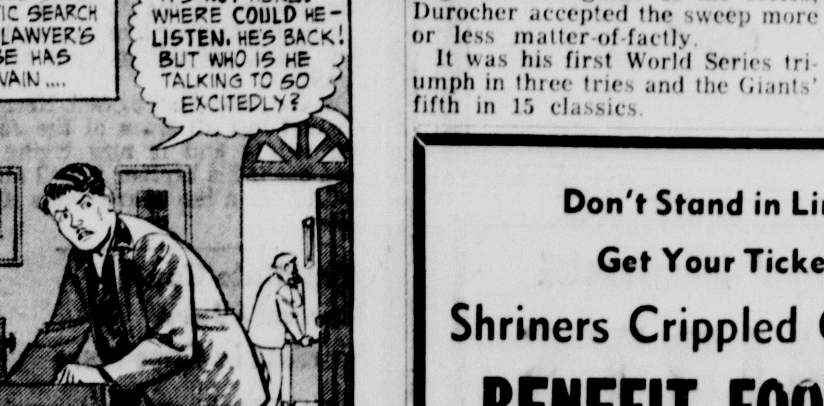

Like the majority of his players, Durocher said he intended to go immediately to his home in California, and "take it easy for a while." Despite the fact that he and his team were distinct underdogs in each game of the series, Durocher accepted the sweep more or less matter-of-factly.

It was his first World Series triumph in three tries and the Giants' fifth in 15 classes.

Edward R. Murrow Receives Freedom House Award

NEW YORK (AP)—News commentator Edward R. Murrow, who once became involved in a dispute with Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy, was presented with the annual Freedom House award Sunday night for "his courage in exposing those who would divide us by exploiting our fears."

Among the many commendations received by Murrow was one from President Eisenhower contained in a letter to George Field, executive secretary, which the chief executive wrote from his summer headquarters in Denver, Colo.

In his message the President said, "it is my understanding that you are presenting your annual award to Edward R. Murrow in recognition of his many years of informative reporting and that you are also taking special note of the Supreme Court decision in segregation in education."

"I hope you will extend my felicitations to Mr. Murrow, who is a long-time personal friend."

SUSPECT

By Hugh Lawrence Nelson

THE STORY: Private Detective Jim Dunn has now met most of the Carlsons, a wealthy family summering in the Colorado mountains. Jim and his wife Nancy have been retained by Mrs. Kit Carlson who wants them to investigate a death on the West Coast which might be murder. Jim and Nancy are posing as caretakers. Mrs. Hilton Carlson, Mrs. Kit's mother-in-law, is feared by Mrs. Kit. Mrs. Oswald Carlson, the mother of Mrs. Hilton's husband, is rather eccentric and has a hobby of taxidermy.

Through the cook, Mrs. Gelstrap, Jim Dunn was informed that his client, Mrs. Kit, had taken to her bed with the beginning of a cold. "Brought on by chill, don't you doubt it," Mrs. Gelstrap said. "I just do hope you'll be able to keep us warm tonight!"

He returned to the cabin in disgust, went to bed too early to a night of restless nightmares in which an animated furnace pursued him through stacks of untouchable wood.

He woke up cold, just as the first sunlight touched the far side of the lake, moved across the water and seemed to pull a wispy, tenuous mist with it.

Nancy had made a warm nest of all the covers and murmured sleepily as he got up. He had a momentary and almost irresistible impulse to pull the bedding away and accuse her of cover snatching. Jim Dunn stretched and yawned. He dressed.

He started down the path toward the main house, in the belief he might still find some embers in his nemesis, the furnace.

He passed the turn in the path before he saw the car.

It was a small but highly polished coupe, parked near the lake shore.

He walked more quickly then, cursing silently at the sound of rushing water which could hide so completely the sound of a motor. He stopped suddenly, retraced the steps he had made in the car's direction.

The door to the basement was open. It stood wide, and he remembered distinctly closing and locking it the night before.

The basement was a gloomy cavern. Warm, pitch-scented air gushed past him to escape into the early morning chill.

He reached for the nearest drop-cord light, turned it on. A nagging familiarity about the small coupe charmed in the back of his mind, was pushed aside in the stress of the moment.

The wood he had piled so laboriously, heavy pitch chunks and odds and ends of logs, threw a dark shadow at the far end. He reached the next light.

The elevator!

The last thing he had done the night before was to fill it with a liberal supply of wood and crank it up into the recess in the floor above. But the supporting ropes showed now, and the recess was no longer closed by the under side of the platform.

Jim moved more quickly, but with an added caution, and turned on the last light. The elevator platform held little wood now, carried a far different burden.

The skirts were dirt stained, twisted around the lax figure. An outstretched arm hung limply, stained palm exposed. Plump legs sprawled out grotesquely, and the heels of the polished, sensible shoes rested in a dark stain on the hard-packed dirt.

Unwanted recollection came to Jim Dunn at that instant. A memory of Miss Wister proudly parking her small coupe in the lot near the office, walking the rug path to take dictation in similar shoes.

Jim skirted the woodpile, moved to a point where he could see the face. He let out a long sigh both of disbelief and relief. Whoever owned the coupe outside, the dead woman was not Miss Wister.

He bent over, found no pulse in the limp wrist, touched gently the battered face of Angelica Carlson Jones.

No reason to doubt the cause of death. The matted mousey hair, the impossible indentation beginning at the bloodstained forehead, told of a crushed skull. Angelica's head and shoulders were partially propped against the wall while her body rested unnaturally on the pieces of pitch still on the elevator floor.

The silence of the house pulled him away from further examination, sent him running up the steep stairway. The door at its head was locked. He pounded at it with the sides of his clenched fists. He waited, listened. He pounded again and shouted. He put his ear to the wooden panel.

The silence was a desolate thing.

He kicked at the door with a booted foot, drew back as far as possible and lunged against the door with his shoulder. It held firm, and Jim was almost catapulted down the steep stairs. There was no purchase for his feet, no room for movement necessary for the sustained effort to break down the door.

He clattered down the stairs, hurried through the basement, closed and locked the outer door behind him. Bright sunlight touched the ground of the triangle. The breeze sent ripple patterns across the lake's surface, bringing color change. Small wavelets added their shore-splashing to the background of rushing creek water.

The sun gleamed from polished chrome on the small coupe. Jim moved quickly, wrenched open an unlocked door. The registration and insurance papers on the steering column told him his memory had not played him false. It was Miss Wister's car.

About Town And Country

You turned papa in. Let me turn in mama.

This daily paper has received a letter which we here at the office think interesting.

It is written by Louise Miner, a student at East Junior High School, Kankakee, Ill., and says:

"Our group in our Social Studies is studying Saline county. I have the subject, 'newspapers.' I would like very much if you could supply me with some information on The Daily Register including who owns it, the person who runs it, who is the editor and how many reporters are on the staff. How long has The Daily Register been in business."

You never know what eyes are on our county.

And in The Linton Daily Citizen, published at Linton, Ind., there's a feature story published in the Sept. 29 issue that tells of a blind man asking aid in finding his brother. The appeal was contained in a letter from Herman Stewart, 892 Fuller avenue, St. Paul 4, Minn.

The letter says the writer is 54 years old, blind and has been at St. Paul for 30 years although he was reared in Linton and vicinity.

His youngest brother, Cecil, about two and a half years old in 1906 when their mother died, was taken by a family named Van Jackson to rear. The Jacksons moved from Linton to Eldorado, where the letter writer visited them in 1908 and discovered the Jacksons were raising the brother like he was their own child, not telling them of his family.

In the years that passed, Herman Stewart lost all trace of the Jackson family and is now trying to find out if his brother is still alive, and to learn his whereabouts if he is.

Appellate Court Reverses Jury Verdict in Case Here

The Illinois appellate court at Mt. Vernon has reversed a jury verdict in Saline county circuit court that gave Walter Patterson a judgment of $5,000 from the Peabody Coal Co. and has remanded the case to the court here for a new trial, it was learned today.

A circuit court jury gave Patterson the $5,000 judgment during the December, 1952, term of court. Patterson sought damages on the contention that dust, fumes, odors and gases from Peabody 47 at Harco had damaged his property.

In the trial Patterson was represented by Rumsey and Dennis, the coal company by Combe and Twente.

Molly Pitcher took the place of her wounded husband in the battle of Monmouth during the Revolutionary War.

More Milk for School Children In State Program

More milk will be available to Illinois pupils under terms of an agreement with the state office of public instruction just signed by Vernon L. Nickell, superintendent.

Nickell said Illinois is joining a nationwide effort to increase the consumption of milk in schools, authorized by Congress, to bring about these increases, the U. S. Department of Agriculture advances funds to the state agency, the office of public instruction, which in turn reimburses the local school system for part of the cost of the additional milk it serves. The milk will be bought directly from local dairies and distributors.

Superintendent Nickell said the new program provides a wonderful opportunity to aid pupils to drink more milk — the most nearly perfect of all foods. He urged that parents assist the new program by enrolling their children in it. He also asked that parents encourage their children's interest in the special school activities which will be designed to tell them more about milk, and why they should drink more of it.
